Gilbert Leach of the Leachburg Commercial has had the fever and insists it pronounced den-pronounced in Webster, Fla., which is up around Leachburg, but in Webster's dictionary, which we hope is on Mr. Leach's desk, it's den-

TIME TO SAVE MONEY

Those who are paying taxes today and taking advantage of the provisions of the Fitch act are keeping the tax shark and his eighteen per cent. interest away from their property. Purchasers of tax certificates, and they are not all tax sharks, are, of course, "picking the property they want and where the taxes are not paid, the owner is but building up a larger tax bill."

Purchasers of tax certificates know that they are not buying by law—the owner of the property must pay them what they have invested in the certificate, plus eighteen per cent. interest.

It will be noted, therefore, that a selfish security of the property owner is the only reason taxpayer to meet his tax obligations. In the manner of the stich year, if he pays less than he but a few dollars. But if he fails to pay and his tax certificate is purchased and then later comes to redeem it, he will pay considerably more—Sarasota Herald.

NO HELP TO FUBAN

Pears of Everglades growers and others that the new Cuban American trade treaty would result in lower tariff duties on imports of vegetables from Cuba apparently have been confirmed.

Concessions have been granted permitting importation at reduced tariff rates of winter grown vegetables, including potatoes, tomatoes, and other staples, chiefly during December, January and February.

In addition, the rates on sugar are cut, providing a possible stumbling block for the growing Everglades sugar industry.

"Florida growers cannot compete with Cuba or Mexico," where the labor is used and where the standard in living is exceptionally low.
 But reduction of the tariff forces competition of this sort.

The governmental relief agencies are trying in every way possible to help the farmer, the laborer and the business man. But Florida gets no relief from tariff reduction which tends to counteract the work of these other agencies.—Palm Beach Post-Times.

WEST PALM BEACH AND GLADES

Some of the faults of West Palm Beach in its attitude toward the Everglades, as seen through the eyes of a Pahokee resident, may be contained in a communication to The Post.

"With reference to your, editorial in 'The Post of the ninth,'" says the letter, "may I ask you to limit your remarks to the merchants of West Palm Beach?
 Why not say 'West Palm Beach take heed'?"

The editorial under discussion contained a warning in West Palm Beach merchants that with completion of state road 26, about to be built from Fort Lauderdale to South Bay, they would be in danger of losing Everglades trade unless steps were taken to firmly cement the friendship now existing between the Glades and West Palm Beach.

Evidently this friendship is non-existent, the writer of the communication to The Post goes to say:

"I feel that the citizens of West Palm Beach should be advised that they are paying too little attention to the stable backing of their town—the Everglades."

"There are at least twelve or fifteen thousand persons in the Everglades who contribute several million dollars to the retail and wholesale businesses of West Palm Beach. This adds business comes directly from the produce grown on the soil of the Everglades, and it affects, materially and vitally, the business of West Palm Beach."

"We of the Everglades are not narrow minded, and I hope that the people in this section do not misinterpret my attitude, and think that you do not want them to have another outlet, thus passing their way to market through an offering committee to those of West Palm Beach—and may I suggest, the citizens of the Everglades to realize more for their money."

"A specific example of the injustice done to the Everglades by West Palm Beach, I wish to call your attention to, the fact that there is not a low-the Everglades securing a 'CWA' or 'PERA' project for the town it will offer twelve or fifteen thousand people separated from a county doctor or clinic of any kind fifty miles of HAZARDOUS roads.

"I am not radical; have no wrongs that West Palm Beach has done, but I have no doubts about the conclusion and make this prediction, 'West Palm Beach will lose a majority of its present retail and wholesale business in the Everglades if it does not change its attitude toward the citizens of the Everglades.' This change will not come about merely as a result of a new road, but it will be brought on by the indifference of West Palm Beach to its business men, professional men, officials, citizens, and newspapers."

"Quite an indictment. But is it justified?"

This Everglades resident evidently has a very definite theory that the friendship between West Palm Beach and the Glades is not a theory at all—a theory at best with the facts.

West Palm Beach will be glad to see any improvement developing in the Everglades, including the new road to Fort Lauderdale. As The Post previously pointed out, this road would benefit the Everglades by cutting the distance between West Palm Beach and the Glades to about half the present distance.

There may be, as the Pahokee resident claims, instances of injustice and grievance, but these are isolated and it is unfair to take them as typical or even negative of West Palm Beach's attitude. If a West Palm Beach resident is also charged with "glades attitude" for that, and in a like vein, if an Everglades resident fails to get from West Palm Beach the particular service he desires, he should not complain. The whole town, nor its "attitude," is at fault.

West Palm Beach's "business men, professional men, citizens and newspapers" have long been friendly with the Everglades and expect to continue their friendship. Time and again motorists have been organized to make good-will visits to the Everglades. This is a small thing, it is true, but truly indicative of the "glades attitude" of West Palm Beach.

West Palm Beach has been interested in Everglades road development, as witness past history, in connection with Conners highway, and the Cross-State highway.
 West Palm Beach has recently applauded and attended the Pahokee and Belle Glade fair and festival and fairs. West Palm Beach is now seeking to improve the sub-canal into the Everglades, even though it may be charged with the selfish motive of getting more trade through West Palm Beach than through the Glades.

The "glades attitude" of the kind to benefit both the city and the Glades and as such should be fostered. West Palm Beach, store town itself, offered whatever facilities it could to the Everglades in dire distress at the time of the 1928 hurricane. West Palm Beach newspapers have applauded and publicized all the developmental and improvement projects of the Everglades, recently also joining in protest of any Cuban vegetable tariff reduction, and again, further, helping the Glades in its fight when there were indications that the prison farm at Belle Glade might be discontinued. West Palm Beach civic clubs have fostered and supported Everglades projects, and have helped the Glades organize their clubs.

West Palm Beach is with you, you people of the Everglades. It has helped you meet your problems and will continue to help. It hopes for your cooperation in our problems, in the future as in the past.

But, as previously said, the Everglades naturally will send its trade to the most desirable point.
 If it is up to West Palm Beach to make this city the most desirable point, if we fail, it is distinctly our loss—and our fault. But even if we do there must always be a bond between West Palm Beach and the Everglades.

The already existing friendship will see to that—Palm Beach Post.

PLANTING AS USUAL

Florida growers of winter vegetables, who are endeavoring to analyze the lowered tariff schedules of the Cuban treaty on their products, frankly admit their inability to determine just what effect the provisions will have on the Florida industry ultimately.

The fact is, many feared imports would be wiped out entirely under the treaty arrangements with Cuba. Naturally there is keen dissatisfaction in finding the walls lowered at all. But a comprehensive study of the levies and their time applications has resulted in some a statement of the first storm growers felt when the rates were published.

In the face of the statement of George S. Fletcher of this city, president of the Florida Agricultural Tariff Association, that no hurricane that ever swept over the state "has hit Florida so hard as this new tariff," winter vegetable growers apparently are preparing to go ahead with the usual winter plantings.

No large curtailment of sowings has been advocated by growers.

With the customary gambling industry, all have to expect that Florida growers may confidently be expected to set out the annual acreage.

Apparently they trust their market, weather conditions affecting any situation that will place them in a position to meet competition from a source where production costs are admittedly lower. Farmers realize many factors, other than mere raising of crops, build largely in making a successful season. The demand of the market, weather conditions affecting crops in competing sections, manipulations in handling at distribution centers—all have to be taken into account. The price of produce that growers feel conditions may bring a body of operation will offset any probable setback caused by the Cuban treaty.

It is safe to predict that south Florida will witness the usual planting of winter vegetables to satisfy the treaty. At the close of harvesting next spring farmers may find the effects of the treaty scheduled on winter vegetables will be more readily seen than now accurately gauged.

In any case it is still true that foreign competition is a certainty of the future. The effects of the treaty on our foreign trade will be intensified by the effects of the depression. Domestic production is but natural American producers of goods affected adversely by the Cuban treaty. The development of interests have been sacrificed to an experiment and their industries exposed to the onslaughts of foreign competition.—Miami Herald.

Attention Drawn Caribbean As Storm Season Approaches

MIAMI, Aug. 30.—(FNS)—This is the season of the year when residents of the Atlantic and Gulf coasts from Texas to Maine become storm conscious and look with apprehension to news of activities in the Caribbean.

During the late summer and early fall frequent headlines com-front newspaper readers with the fact that a "Tropical Disturbance" is brewing in the Caribbean.

Unfortunately for Florida, out-of-state papers are inclined to disregard the advance announcements which tell of the origin of the storm but wait until the storm center nears the coast of the United States. Relatively few these storms actually touch the Florida coast, either Gulf or Atlantic. As the storm center approaches this section local weather Bureau records its progress and this state immediately becomes identified as the news source of the storm. Editors promptly add it to "Another Florida Storm,"

Gulf coast sections of Texas.

No one can predict the number of tropical storms which will develop this fall. There probably will be several but the chances that any of them will strike Florida are one in twenty.

The weather Bureau makes every effort to give out complete and accurate information and both newspapers and the public may aid by refraining from spreading alarming news until reasonably sure there is an actual danger.

For 60 years technical experts of the weather Bureau have studied the movements and behavior of hurricanes. An extensive knowledge has been gained of these storms. This knowledge, however, is naturally confined to the few who have made an intensive study of the subject. Hundreds of lesser experts take occasion to predict what these storms will do and often times such predictions cause needless worry and apprehension, even after all danger is passed.

The weather Bureau has greatly improved its storm warning reports are received by the Bureau from ships at sea. Through radio and telegraph communications the Bureau keeps in constant touch with a storm and issues authentic information and warnings to the public based on the information received, together with scientific knowledge gained from 60 years of study and research. The weather Bureau is the only authorized source of such information.

Frequently the more announcement of a storm brewing, handsome the weather Bureau. Thousands of alarmed citizens harass the weather office for information that often cannot be given since the storm center is hundreds of miles away. If the public will turn to the newspaper and radio for latest bulletins, which are promptly given out to such minute information.

The tropical storm is not pleasant to contemplate but compared with weather conditions elsewhere, drought and earthquakes, we may realize that our troubles are light in comparison.

As for 1934, while a storm might hit us, the chances based on sixty years of official government reports are that it won't. If you place any bets, better get odds of twenty to one and even then you'll probably lose.

ADVERTISING LINEAGE IS

July 1933 by 64 percent. The large-est gain—16.3 percent—was shown in automobile advertising. Magazine advertising improvement was Daytona Beach.—It is hard to keep off the subject of fish when you spend two or three days a week whippin' a plug over the water and waitin' for that thrillin' "kerplunk" when a big fellow takes it into his head to knock your minnow for a loop.

I've been doin' some thinkin' in between "strikes" and I'm wonderin' if we Floridians really appreciate the value of the thousands of game fish that are found in the state's sapphire waters. We talk about our commercial fishing industry and I'm not discountin' that but the commercial fisherman only gets a few cents a pound for the trout, rohalo, blue fish and others of the game fish tribe that he brings in with his net, while the same fish can be marketed to the sportsman for as high as a dollar or more a pound.

I know a chap who comes to Florida every year just to fish. He generally registers at a good hotel where he pays $10 or more a day. He pays another $10 for a boat and guide. He spends anywhere from $2 to $5 a day for tackle. He manages to pass out another $10 to $100 on tips, cigars, and incidentals. He buys gas and oil and occasionally a beer or more a pound.

Just for fun we figured up what his fish cost him in dollars per pound for a week's sport fishing. Here is how it stacked up.

Hotel American plan—$4.00 5 days at $12—$60.00 Gas and oil—2.00
Guide and boat hire—45.00
Tackle—11.00
Incidentals—$150.00

During that week's fishing, which included trips in both fresh and salt water, he caught a total of 108 fish, including a 10 pound black bass, an 18 pound red fish and a 12 pound snook. The rest were small but because of the three big ones he felt he had gotten more than his money's worth.

The total weight of his week's catch amounted to 189 pounds. Each fish cost him almost a dollar a pound. Had those same fish been sold at a commercial market they would have brought less than $10. The potential value of every game fish that swims in Florida waters is a great deal more than most of us realize.

Two been talking about the sportsman who confines his fishing primarily to a light casting rod and artificial bait. When you take in the big game fish like tarpon and sailfin you find it even more profitable.

The All Florida committee recently pointed out the fact that one Florida city last year showed expenditures of $439,000 for tackle, $90,000 for mounting, sailfin and martin, $600,000 for charter boats and $365,000 for individual fishing.

Numbers of commerce, newspapers, civic clubs in localities naturally favored as sports fishing localities would find it a profitable investment to "pay attention" to this particular attraction.

"Make a fuss over the fisherman. It will mean more business and more money for your community and prove a mighty good investment."

Sportsmen are good spenders. Make them happy here and they'll want to stay. Many a piece of Florida property has been sold to

INSTALLS SHOWCASE

Installation of a Warren 10-foot, electrically refrigerated showcase was made this week by Colonel's Grocery, north of Canal Point. The old showcase was removed early in the week to make room for the more modern and sanitary one, and display will be facilitated, and at the same time absolute protection will be afforded.

ENJOYING TRIP

A card from Mr. and Mrs. R. J. Simonsen, mailed from Colorado Springs, states that they are enjoying an enjoyable trip through the western states. Mr. Simonsen mentioned on the card that they were leaving for Arkansas on Monday this week and will be back home soon. He also commented on the fine drinking water of that section and further stated that the weather was chilly, considering the time of year.

Fred McDonald and Walter Milliken returned Monday from Safety Harbor, where they went to take Mr. McDonald's brother, Carl, who will undergo treatment there.

Mr. and Mrs. Brooks Bateman of Pahokee, and Miss Sadie Todd of Canal Point, returned Saturday from a trip through the states that included a visit at the World's Fair in Chicago, New York City and Philadelphia.

Mr. and Mrs. Roscoe Stokes were business visitors in West Palm Beach Wednesday.

Mrs. E. R. Posner of Lake Wales, has returned to her home after spending a week with Mrs. B. Carlisle and son, at their home north of town.

Horne McDonald, of Wauchusa, and J. T. Atkins, of Moore Haven, were business visitors in Pahokee last night Thursday.

Mrs. D. Hunt, Mr. and Mrs. H. B. Hunt and son of Mulberry, Fla., visited Mrs. D. Hunt's sister, Mrs. R. T. Bardin and family this week, returning Thursday afternoon to their home in Mulberry. Genevieve and Susie Bardin accompanied them to their home.
